PrimeLending Promotes Scott Bristol to President and Steve Thompson to Executive Vice President, National Production Manager

DALLAS (Aug. 30, 2013)— Scott Bristol has been promoted to president of PrimeLending, effective Sept. 1, 2013. In his new role, Bristol will have full operating authority, reporting to PrimeLending CEO Todd Salmans. He will have direct reporting responsibility for national production, national operations and capital markets/secondary marketing.

Bristol joined PrimeLending in May 2009 as regional manager and was promoted to senior vice president, Western divisional manager in July 2011 where he was responsible for branch production and operations throughout his division. In December 2012, Bristol was promoted to executive vice president, national production manager, where his responsibilities included managing production and growing sales volume at a national level.

Steve Thompson has been promoted to executive vice president, national production manager. In addition to production, he will be responsible for multicultural lending and marketing.

Thompson joined PrimeLending in June 2011 as senior vice president, regional manager, of the Mountain West region. In October 2012, he was promoted to executive vice president, Western division, where he was responsible for branch production and operations.

Before joining PrimeLending, Thompson held senior management positions at GMAC Mortgage, including senior vice president/national retail production director and senior vice president/West division sales manager of retail.
